Fundamentele bio-psiho-sociale ale integrării sociale a tinerilor instituționalizați/Bio-psycho-social foundations of social integration of young people in institutions

Abstract:

The paper presents synthetically and systematically the fundamentals of harmonious development of young people as a condition of a correct social integration. At first, the conditions for a desirable social integration are exposed from a biological point of view. In the third chapter the psycho-emotional conditions are analyzed, and in the third part are presented some aspects of the integration from a social perspective.

At the end, the defining factors of child development that influence their social integration are revised, and they are: the family environment and the parental functions, the basic needs of the child, the effects of the socio-emotional environment.
